Hi, Ho, Come to the 1939 Faculty Fair

"Oh, the sun is a-shining to welcome the day, So, hi, ho, Come to the Fair."

The year 1939 apparently is the year for fairs—there's the "World of Tomorrow" in New York City and the Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco.

But entertainment such as students at the College have never seen before will be presented at the Faculty Fair, the instructor's own social event to be staged on the campus north of the Administration building Tuesday, June 13.

The informal Faculty Fair will be held in lieu of the annual Summer quarter faculty reception which is ordinarily held at the beginning of the summer term.

Entertainment at the Fair will be staged entirely by the faculty of the College, and committee members have announced that, in keeping with the theme of the Fair, "informal refreshments" will be served. The entertainment will be held from 4 to 6 o'clock the afternoon of Tuesday the Thirteenth, and in case of rain the Fair will be held Wednesday, June 14, same time, same place.

All students are asked to attend the Fair, "as you are." In other words, informality will predominate at the only affair of the entire quarter where every student may meet every faculty member on an informal, social basis.

"Drop in to the Fair as you go home for the evening next Tuesday," was the informal invitation extended by the College faculty-student social committee which is planning the affair. Dr. Margaret Ruth Smith, director of personnel for women, is chairman of this committee.

"Hi, ho, Come to the Fair."

Musicians to Appear Here—

Nina Mesirov-Minchin, left, pianist, and Ennio Bolognini, cellist, who will appear in a concert here Friday, June 23, when the Russian Trio will present a program at the regular weekly assembly.

According to the New York Times "These artists brought not only a program which suited the most exacting taste, but also a playing distinguished by a combined sense of style, beauty of tone, inclusive rhythm, and pulse. The music was set forth in all its unflagging beauty. The large house warmly greeted the ensemble."

Dr. Jesse Miller of Maryville is the other member of the board. His term expires in 1941.

Dr. Mehus Leaves For Winona Post

Dr. O. Myking Mehus, for the past eleven years professor of education and sociology of this College, left by automobile last Monday afternoon for Winona, Minnesota. He expects to take up his new duties as president of the Winona State Teachers College on June 8.

Winona is a city of about 22,000 population. The Winona College, with about 500 students enrolled and forty-seven faculty members, is one of the oldest teacher training institutions west of the Mississippi River. Winona is located on the Mississippi River in one of the most beautiful spots in Minnesota.

"I leave with mingled feelings of joy and sorrow," stated Dr. Mehus to a Missourian reporter this week, "joy at the larger opportunity to serve in the teacher training field and sadness because of having to leave behind such a large host of friends—both in the faculty and student body. I have thoroughly enjoyed the eleven years I have spent at the College here. The faculty has been most kind and the students have been loyal and responsive."

"Mrs. Mehus and I extend a hearty invitation to each and every one of you to visit us any time you may come to Minnesota."

Many farewell dinners and parties have been given in honor of Dr. Mehus and his family. They leave behind them a host of friends among the faculty, the student body, and the citizens of Maryville.

Hot Weather of Summer Months Will Not Discourage Students.

During the summer months more than 900 students, a great many of whom have had teaching experience, endure the hot June and July days to attend the annual ten-weeks summer session. But these hot summer days do not seem to be discouraging at all.

In fact, walking through the halls of the College buildings and into the classrooms, much interest is noted in all activities. Every student seems to have something definite planned to do.

To be sure, it is a different type of student in the summer classes than the one who was here last winter. Many have had several years of teaching experience, which is shared with experiences of others in the classrooms and in outside discussions.

It is not hard to imagine that in some respect summer school is like an educational convention. Students are comparing notes, discussing past experiences in the teaching field, and studying what they know they are going to need for teaching another year.

But many of the summer school students have had no such experiences. They are going to school this summer because they want to add extra hours toward their degree. Others are doing post-graduate work.

The newspaper staff welcomes the summer school students, and hopes that it may express as nearly as possible student opinion in its five issues of this school term.

Student Drivers' Cooperation In Parking on Campus Needed

Many Summer school students are driving to school this term, as is evidenced by the large number of automobiles parked on the campus each day.

Since there are so many cars being parked each morning on the campus, those who arrive later cannot find space for parking near the administration building. This necessitates additional walking which takes time.

Now students who are driving these cars to school should remember one thing. That is, if they park their automobile in a line parallel with other cars, and as close to other cars as possible, much space can be saved. Consequently this will make it possible for more students to park nearer the main building.

The administration of the College wishes to cooperate with students who drive cars by providing ample parking space, and it expects cooperation from the student driver in his being courteous in regard to parking and driving regulations.

1940 Political Outlook is Discussed by Editorial Writers of Collegiate Press

In recent weeks the collegiate press has discussed through editorial columns the trend of events in international affairs, but even more recently editorials have dealt with politics on the "home" soil. Subjects of many editorials have concerned the election next year of president and vice-president of the United States and the possible candidates.

The following excerpts from editorials in College papers throughout the land were collected by Associated Collegiate Press and sent to this newspaper in one of its weekly service releases. Students in this College should be interested in the national political outlook, especially since most Summer term students are of voting age.

Although the college press and the great mass of undergraduates are still just as engrossed in international politics as they have been the past month or so, many of them are turning their thoughts to preparations for the political battles that will be fought on the home ground next year. There is little to report in the way of a trend, but the following will give opinion-charted something to go on in the way of guide-posts for the future:

Students of Hardin Simmons University (in Texas) have formed a Garner-for-President Club, with the following as their battle-cry: "Saddle Your Pack with Cactus Jack." An announcement by the club says: "We believe he represents the conservative element in government, an element

From the Dean . . .

You are in school this summer in order that the boys and girls of Missouri shall have better teachers next year. We hope you will find here at Northwest Missouri State Teachers College much that will help you personally as well as professionally.

Our schools are organized for the purpose of educating people for participation in a democratic society. The success of this purpose depends upon the classroom teacher who has learned to think independently, who has the ability to cooperate with others, and who has broad sympathy and understanding of the problems of a democratic society, and then develops the same characteristics in his pupils.

May your summer with us help you to grow in ability in each of these traits and give you renewed courage to carry forward the great work of the teacher.

—J. W. Jones

which America, because of the radical surge of liberalism during the last few years, is needing. We believe he will not be the tool of politicians, but will work diligently as the servant of the sovereign people of America to bring about prosperity work for the common good, and promote peace and international friendship which will give America her just place as the bulwark of the democratic systems of government."

But, the University of Minnesota Daily thoroughly disagrees with this group, and maintains that "Garner is no more than a small time politician in spite of the persistent attempts to picture him as an astute statesman blessed with homely wisdom. Garner's qualifications apparently consist of his ability to play poker, his position as a conservative democrat, and his political adroitness in sabotaging the New Deal. Considering all this, the Garner boom seems unbelievable, but unfortunately it is a political reality."

On the other hand, the McMurray College War Whoop (also in Texas) loudly whoops for his election with these words: "Should he be elected, he would serve the purpose of classifying all of the recent Roosevelt legislation, discarding the worthless (of which there is much) and strengthening the few really valuable laws that have been passed. 'Cactus Jack,' as dry as the plains of Texas, as sharp as the thorns of a Texas mesquite, and with a heart as big and as warm as the Texas from whence he comes should logically be our next democratic presidential nominee."

The president's efforts to make his party a strong liberal party has drawn strong praise from the Egyptian of Southern Illinois Teachers College: "President Roosevelt should be commended by all progressive citizens of both parties for his recent appeal to the Democratic party to definitely establish itself as the liberal party. For many years the words Democrat and Republican have been more or less meaningless as far as actually denoting the attitudes and policies of the party members. There has been an unnatural division among the voters with all shades of liberals and conservatives grouped together around the Democratic and Republican standards. It is to be hoped that Mr. Roosevelt will be successful in his attempt to dispel the magic of the words Democrat and Republican and establish a new political line-up of liberals vs. conservatives." Many other college papers have expressed their endorsement of this view.

As far as the third term for the President is concerned, most collegians do not favor the move, most do not believe he would be elected, if nominated.

The Republicans are receiving little or no notice in the College press. About the only mention of them in recent weeks is this brief note in the University of Baltimore Baloo: "From now on we're going to keep our eyes on Senator Borah. He is the only government official to have gumption to express what many of us have been thinking. We wonder if the Republican party realizes that it has something in this man."

Staying in the middle of the road, the University of Iowa Daily Iowan gives this important bit of advice to its readers: "At this point we're little interested in the candidates themselves. We're more interested in the electorate. May we remind you, all over 21, that it is to your own interest and to the interest of your country that you begin now to familiarize yourself with the men mentioned and that you keep in constant touch with developments? Remember, you're living in a DEMOCRACY!"

From Our Exchanges

A midshipman wandered into a tennis tournament one day last year, and sat down on a bench. "Whose game?" he asked.

A shy young thing sitting next to him looked up hopefully. "I am," she replied.

The young duckling must have been terribly embarrassed when he found that his first pair of trousers was down.

Campus Beauties, Heroes "Grinds" Trail All Around College Students in Race for Jobs

All around students, especially those who worked their way through College, have a better chance of getting a job after graduation than the campus hero or the college "grind," according to King Merritt, vice president of Investors Syndicate, of Minneapolis.

Athletic and beauties, unlike a few years ago, are not being sought unless they can offer to their prospective employers some substantial qualities, such as character, scholarship, adaptability, leadership or personality, a survey of 186 American Colleges and Universities reveals.

Although the job outlook for College graduates is brighter than in either 1938 or 1937, American employers are more exacting in their requirements, preferring employees capable of being developed into executives within the next decade over those who seem to have decided limitations.

"Character as a prime qualification for a job," explained Mr. Merritt in reporting on total replies, "was mentioned by 103 schools, scholarship by 29, personality by 15, adaptability by 12 and leadership by 6. Secondary qualifications put scholarship first with 66 mentions. Then followed adaptability with 36, character with 33, and personality with 19 mentions. A third qualification group gave adaptability 49 and scholarship 45 mentions. Twenty-three mentions of campus popularity put it at the head of the fourth qualification group. Athletic prowess headed the fifth group with 24 mentions."

"An appointment official of a non-sectarian College wrote:

"I have found a very pronounced trend toward and more emphasis on character, including a preference for a religious background." Several denominational Colleges, widely varying on dogmas, reported religious qualifications mentioned less frequently than heretofore.

"Officials of American institutions of higher learning were asked two questions: 'In order of their importance, if possible, what are the qualifications principally sought by employers of graduates?' and 'From your observations what qualifications do employers the last few years seem to be stressing more? Less?' Most comments and explanations were made in answering the second question.

"The student who today works his or her way through College," continued Mr. Merritt, "and thus earns his or her educational expenses in whole or part can be counted on to solve difficulties after graduation, several officials emphasized. One typical reply to the query on what qualifications were being stressed more follows:

"Considerable emphasis is placed on the student earning part of his way through College. This is a business asset and improves the probability of getting a position, even though the scholarship has been handicapped somewhat by the process."

"Numerous replies mentioned: 'outside work done during the College course'; 'many employers are much interested in experience outside of College'; 'extra-curricular activities as indicative of ability outside classroom' and 'ability', 'dependability', and 'reliability', as shown by scholastic records and outside of college.' One wrote that 'the ideal would be the student who is in the top third of his class and at the same time has earned part of his way through school.'

"Personality, that much used and abused word, as one of my informants puts it, is mentioned with increasing frequency, but generally in combination with some other qualities like ability, adaptability and appearance. The latter word aroused the ire of the dean of a woman's college, who, after reporting she found increasing stress on personality, added 'personality is stressed ad nauseum in terms of striking appearance beauty.'

"Adaptability, co-operative-ness, compatibility, and the ability to work harmoniously with others are being stressed more, especially by large organizations, who emphasize team play even in research."

"The 'book worm' and the 'human encyclopedia' with their brilliant and superlative scholarship are being sharply differentiated from job candidates who had average or above-average grades plus ability, all around training, adaptability, co-operativeness, dependability, enthusiasm, initiative, imagination, loyalty and reliability. Mere book ability, factual knowledge, high grades, numerous degrees and studiousness are relatively unimportant unless accompanied by other desirable qualities."

"Employers are demanding individuals of promise—men and women who will be executives within the next ten or fifteen years."

People Have More Fun!

(By Helen J. Reed)

People have more fun than anybody. Especially people who go on vacations. "Now when we took our trip to California we brought back the nicest bunch of pictures. I'm sure you'd love to see them all. This one was taken . . . Oh, you've seen that before. Well, here is one that is just too lovely. We took this one in Yellowstone Park. Isn't it a perfect view of 'Old Faithful'?" And then we have some more. . .

"We visited the Black Hills last . . ."

"Oh, then you would enjoy seeing our pictures of the Minnesota Lakes. Here is the one where Junior fell in and we had such a time getting him out. Have I told you about the time Ronnie got caught in the first net? You've heard it? Well let me tell you that was one time . . ."

And so on . . . far, far, into the night.

The pleasures of travelers vacations are many and genuine but alas for the sufferers who need not take the actual vacation. They get their looking at the pictures which the travelers bring back.

But people who take vacations are one degree ahead of some of the other pests which the Summer Season brings forth. For instance, those mosquitoes who come to you with free advice on what to do for the heat, how to keep cool, first class remedies for ivy-pollens and the trees best patent medicines that bring guaranteed results to hay-fever sufferers. In this classification there is one yet lower.

Those who tell you about much worse than hay fever a year or two ago and offer the information there is no cure for asthma than their great-great-aunt's grand old salve.

Summer is a fine time for one to warm up after the winter cooling off. Some people take winter to cool off from Summer all Summer to warm up from winter. When it comes to teachers and their studying opinion can be stated that it takes a teacher very long to how to polish the apple after ing school all winter. Luck best shiner!

The Stroller . . .

And as the big corpse said to the little pusle, "Hiya Blood."

Well, students, here it is summer and the Stroller is still at it—but you know it takes some time to place everybody. There are surely a lot of faces back this session—Dick Barrett of six years back—and just gobs of others. I see half of the Seniors of last year are back for maybe they just can't break away from pur happy atmosphere. The Stroller hopes by week to know each and every one of you—so be on your best behavior, because I'll be way you.

Here's a little tip for it looks like a school teachin' did wonders for Dorothy Moore—do you suppose the rest of us should out and see what the big old world would do.

Paul "Happy" Fields is back in school, summer session—now there is a nice chap some lonely little girl this summer—just a mer romance.

Flash, Flash, boys, have you seen the blue-eyed Irish girl yet—turned up nos freckles, too. But the Stroller has been in she goes home every week-end—boys, boys, the matter "slipping?"

P. S.—Her name is Helen M. Boyd, town Trenton.

Students, if you are all wondering about marvelous change in Paul Allen, I believe, in presence of the girl friend in school, this summer Anyway Thorp has been Ace high for about years—some record, girls.

Oh girls, have you seen the new life gu open pool? Isn't he just too good looking for and such a physique. (Form, to you, unedue Now what the Stroller can't figure out is why Ernst started after him, so strong and then in favor of her sorority sister, Mary Jane. Maybe it is because June is supposed to be going steady.

Better get your hooks in early, girls, ca looks like Mr. Clyde Bailey is going to have a summer.

This summer the hall of the "Ad" but reminds one of "No man's land." There are as few men seen there as there are on the floor of the Dorm.

Surprising what all comes back in the B department's laundry???

Frances Kueker officially opened the session by collecting the first "Frat" pin, season. Of course she jumped the gun a little, looking "Cotton" between quarters but she decided to overlook that this time.

That little Insley "Flash" has things pretty nice this summer with his high school coming out here to school and all. It certainly on the shoe leather, doesn't it Insley?

STC Baseball Nine to Meet Warrensburg Here Today

STC Will Have Baseball Team

Four Games Scheduled With Central Missouri Mules by Mr. Davis

With enrollment for the summer term at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College now completed and with the return of several star baseball players from other schools, E. A. Davis, athletic director, is centering his attention on intercollegiate baseball and intramural athletic events. It will be the first summer in several years that intercollegiate baseball has been played by the local Bearcats.

With Coaches Ryland Milner and Wilbur Staloup attending the summer session at Louisiana University in Baton Rouge, the direction of summer quarter athletics will be entirely in the hands of Mr. Davis, who coached Bearcat football teams here for many years prior to two years ago when Coach Milner took the helm. It was then that Mr. Davis was made director of athletics here.

To Play Warrensburg

The opening baseball game of the season will be at 3 o'clock this Friday afternoon on the local diamond when the Bearcats will meet their ancient and traditional rivals of the basketball court and football gridiron, the Warrensburg Mules. Since the Mules did not play baseball this spring, little is known of the strength of their team.

Four games are scheduled for the summer with the Mules, the game here this week and a return encounter there the following Friday, and two other games to be played later in the summer. Mr. Davis said today that he will schedule games with other colleges and several independent clubs this summer if possible.

The biggest weakness on the baseball team encountered by Coach Milner this past spring—that of a good pitching staff—fairly well be cared for this summer as two star hurlers of other years have enrolled for the next ten-week term. They are John Wright of Princeton and Ed Hiner of Rushville. Both have had considerable experience in leagues in this section of the state.

Eldon Ridge of Grant City is another hurler who will be on the mound for the Bearcats. He showed up well in games the latter part of the past spring schedule.

Another former star who has returned for the summer is Perrill Collings of Whitesville, who will play at second base, the position filled by Joe Kurtright of Albany this spring.

Wynn Duncan of Lineville, Ia., who was in school this spring but who did not report for baseball, has reported for summer practice and will probably be a candidate for third base. The remainder of the infield will be filled by Marion Rogers, Jackson, at first base, and Dale Hackett, Burlington Junction, at shortstop. Both of these men played those positions this spring.

William Metz, Wlota, Ia., and Harold Hull, Maryville, right and left fielders respectively, will play the same positions they held during the spring season. The remaining places on the team will be filled from the fifteen men who have reported for the varsity sports.

Intramural sports for the summer, which will be open to all men students, will include golf, tennis, horseshoe and softball tournaments.

'Cellist With Russian Trio is Ex-Prizefighter, Sportsman

Trio to Appear on STC Stage Friday Morning, June 23, in Concert

The Russian trio, a musical aggregation which has been in existence eight years, will appear in the College auditorium in a morning program Friday, June 23.

An interesting feature story on Ennio Bolognini, cellist with the group and ex-prizefighter, appeared in a column by James S. Kearns on the sports page of the Chicago Daily News of Monday, May 29. The story follows:

Our first look at Ennio Bolognini came as he reached for his cello in L'Algon on the near North Side the other night. He shifted his chair so that he could lean back against a pillar and then with a nod to his ensemble, he played. What he played was "Macushia," and then when he finished he said:

"It is funny about that Irish song. It brought me to the United States, and it kept me here. I played it in Buenos Aires once, a long time ago. I was a boy, playing a concert. I played 'Macushia,' and I heard someone singing it in the front row—not good singing.

"Afterward he came back to see me, and he said, 'I am sorry, I did not mean to sing. But the song is Irish. . . . and it's been a long time.' He was strange, that fellow—battered ears, scars near his eyes and a crooked nose. His name was Willie Gould. He was a prize fighter. Or he had been."

Would Bolognini play a request for the lady? He would, and Geschichten aus dem Wiener Wald would be lovely, he said. It was.

"Willie Gould was starting a boxing club in Buenos Aires. I went to learn boxing from him. I hadn't been a bad street fighter."

Bolognini learned to box. He became, eventually, the middleweight and light-weight amateur champion of South America. He came to think that Luis Angel Firpo, the old Wild Bull of the Pampas, could whip any man on earth. Bolognini, with his cello, came north to see Firpo prove it on Sept. 14, 1923, in New York against Jack Dempsey. The cellist beat everything but his cello on his countryman.

"I think your sport writers cost me my money," he says mildly. "They pushed Dempsey back into the ring. But really he won fairly because Luis hadn't knocked him out of the ring. He pushed him, half threw him out."

Always, the cello. Toscanini is godfather to Bolognini—one of three baptismal sponsors. Ennio has played his cello with Toscanini and the New York Philharmonic. He is a fine cellist. He might have been a pianist. Paderewski told him so once when they played billiards in Buenos Aires.

"Your hands!" he said, when I was trying a masse shot. 'You should play.' I said 'No, the cello is enough.' And I missed the masse."

Would Bolognini play again for the lady? Of course. From Thais time time. Ah, yes.

He is a strange cellist this man who, when we asked his age, said to make it "39½. . . . It is half-past nine now. And I am about that old."

He won't be at L'Algon, tonight or tomorrow. He will be hearing other music—the roar of racing motors at Indianapolis. He would miss anything to keep from missing the 500-mile race. He used to drive cars in road races in the Argentine. When 55 m. p. m. was a great speed. He was an amateur rowing champion, too. But boxing and motors and speed were the sports he clung to. On the lapel of his dinner coat is a small pair of silver wings.

"Because," he explained about them, "I am godfather to an airplane. I broke the champagne on 'La Golondrina,' the first plane built in South America. That was, I think, the year 1916. Who built it? My friend and I. We flew it 18 miles."

And that, as Bolognini played another request for the lady, left Toscanini established as great-godfather to an airplane.

College Men Are Proud Pioneers of NYA Project

55 Men Move This Week To The Newly Completed Units in Quadrangle

By Virgil Klontz

This week marked another period in the development of the College expanding program when fifty-five men moved into the two completed units of N. Y. A. quadrangle. The project which began late last summer is unique in that it is the first project of its kind in the country.

The day of the beginning of the excavation for the new dormitories at Northwest Missouri State Teachers' College carried much importance to the boys concerned, and was significant to the country at large. This group of one hundred and twenty youths was the nucleus of a new plan for extensive educational advantages for able youths, the first of its kind to be organized. Although other schools are considering the plan and some have accepted it, the project at Maryville is the pioneer of them all, and upon its success or failure rests the possibilities of continuance or abandonment of the plan.

Work Seems Slow

Excavation of the building site was accomplished only by the use of hand tools, a breaking plow, and a team of mules. This seemed a slow process to the boys at work, but it furnished employment for many, and after the ground was leveled the work progressed more rapidly.

At the beginning of the plowing and shoveling process, the group of youths was photographed, with wheelbarrows and shovels, headed by a team of mules and a plow. The story was carried in the leading newspapers of the nation, and much attention was focused on the pioneering project, the beginning of the first building. This was on September 17, 1938.

After the excavating was completed work was concentrated on the housing units. Footings were poured for three dormitories and the dining hall, although only two have been completed. The dining hall is expected to be ready for use by late June. Nearly all of the work has been done by the N. Y. A. men who work four hours per day, attending College classes the remainder of the day.

Proud Pioneers

The original building plan was to cover a period of two years, during which time six dormitories, a dining hall, and a recreation hall will have been completed. Although the building era may extend a bit over the allotted time of two years, the youths moving into their new homes will feel well rewarded for their effort.

Those youths who were the pioneers in this building project and who have stayed on the job have much to their credit, and those who take their places will have more advantages in better living conditions. They are proud to have been the pioneers.

1939 'Tower' is Dedicated to Mrs. Uel Lamkin

The 1939 edition of "The Tower", published by the Junior class at the College, was distributed during the last week of the Spring quarter. The book has a white rough leather cover with a raised reproduction in green of one of the towers shooting up from the northwest corner of an outline of Missouri.

The year book, dedicated to Mrs. Uel W. Lamkin, "first lady of the College," has the theme of hands, which, as explained in the foreword, are "the keynote to a man's personality."

Sketches of hands have been used in introducing each of the different sections of the book. Marjorie Fisher was the art editor.

The annual was edited by Willis E. Heal and Robert Denton was business manager.

Special features such as walk-out day, the "Tower Queen", College dances, the dance band, football games, basketball games, and many other important events fill several pages. Organizations are represented by each member's individual picture.

The sports section contains pictures of the 1939 M. I. A. A. championship football team, basketball team, track team, and also pictures of women athletic events.

College Graduate to Take Bicycle Tour of Several European Countries

Miss Ida Beth Newlon and Companion Sails June 2; English Bikes

Miss Ida Beth Newlon, Rock Port, a graduate of the College, in company with a friend sailed from New York June 2 for a bicycle tour of Europe. She and her friend, Miss Mary Mackin, who teaches near Des Moines, Ia., expect to be in Europe for nine weeks, which will not include the week for passage each way.

Both are members of the Student Youth Hostel Association, which now operates in all countries of Europe, as well as in the United States. There are more than 4,000 European hostels, situated from fifteen to twenty miles apart.

The women will visit England, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and return by way of France where they will board an ocean liner at Bologna for the return trip.

They will not take bicycles with them but will wait to hire English bicycles, which are claimed to be lighter and Tandem bicycles are generally on the student tours.

The students will carry their luggage in their own sleeping sacks by the hostel association.

Miss Newlon speaks French and her companion hopes the entire eleven-week trip will cost approximately $450.

Miss Newlon taught at the Broseley high school at Bluff, Mo., last year and resumed her duties there in September. She expects to spend next year completing her Master's degree at Iowa university, but after that she wants to travel all through Europe and perhaps visit other countries by bicycle.

Miss Walker Displays High School Art Work

Miss Elizabeth Walker, Director of Art, Champaign, Illinois, who is an instructor in the Department of Fine Arts during this summer, has on display, in room 400, interesting work from the elementary and high schools of that city which have been done by students under her supervision. Visitors are welcome to examine it during the time classes are not in session.

Hall Lights

Residence Hall got under way this week when a nominating committee was elected to appoint house officers for the summer term.

Hub-bub has been in the Hall for two weeks. At present, however, things have become more settled as all the schools are out and the teachers have all signed up.

One doesn't have to ring the gong twice for meals, for the new hash-slingers seem to be quite an attraction.

The living room of the dorm seems to be quite deserted since summer school started—it isn't understood as the parlor floor seems to be in just as good condition as it has been all year.

Mary Louise Law was taken to the hospital Tuesday evening.

Johnny on the spot is the new name for the trouble boy at the Hall, for Billy Shadwick does and fixes all the little odd things around

Return From Absence Leaves

Miss Estella Bowman, Margaret Franken, and Mr. Schuster all members of the whose leaves of absence expired, are back on the College this summer. Miss Bowman, English department, and Franken, education, have been attending Columbia University, New York. Mr. Schuster of the ment of music has been at the past year at Northwest university.
